

LUMA COOKING HUB

The foundation of much of our built environment is rooted in food, as it inherently draws people together. The proposing Luma Cooking Hub uses food as a medium to gather the community members with different cultural backgrounds. While providing a wide range of facilities for the community life, the project also aims to reconnect occupants with nature through events of producing, harvesting and cooking food. By embedding these activities into the core design, this community centre promotes a sustainable life style.
